

Ninebark

Physocarpus opulifolius

Ninebark is known for its foliage, clusters of white flowers in the spring, and red fruits in the autumn. Flowers of ninebark are an excellent nectar source, and the fruits are eaten by many species of birds.

Soils: Sand, Loam, Clay

Moisture: Moist to dry

Shade Tolerance: Full sun to part shade

Mature Height: 10 ft.

Deer Damage Potential:

Origin: Native

Uses: wildlife, ornamental